Notable features:

Numbers 913 and 917 are 2½ story houses which match the others at the east end of the group. Numbers 921 and 923 are more elaborate houses but probably of the same date; they have round-headed doorways and a relatively severe cornice. Numbers 925 and 927 may be a little bit later. They do not appear on the 1852 map which would indicate that this assumption is probably correct. Number 927 (judging from the cornice) is datable 1880.

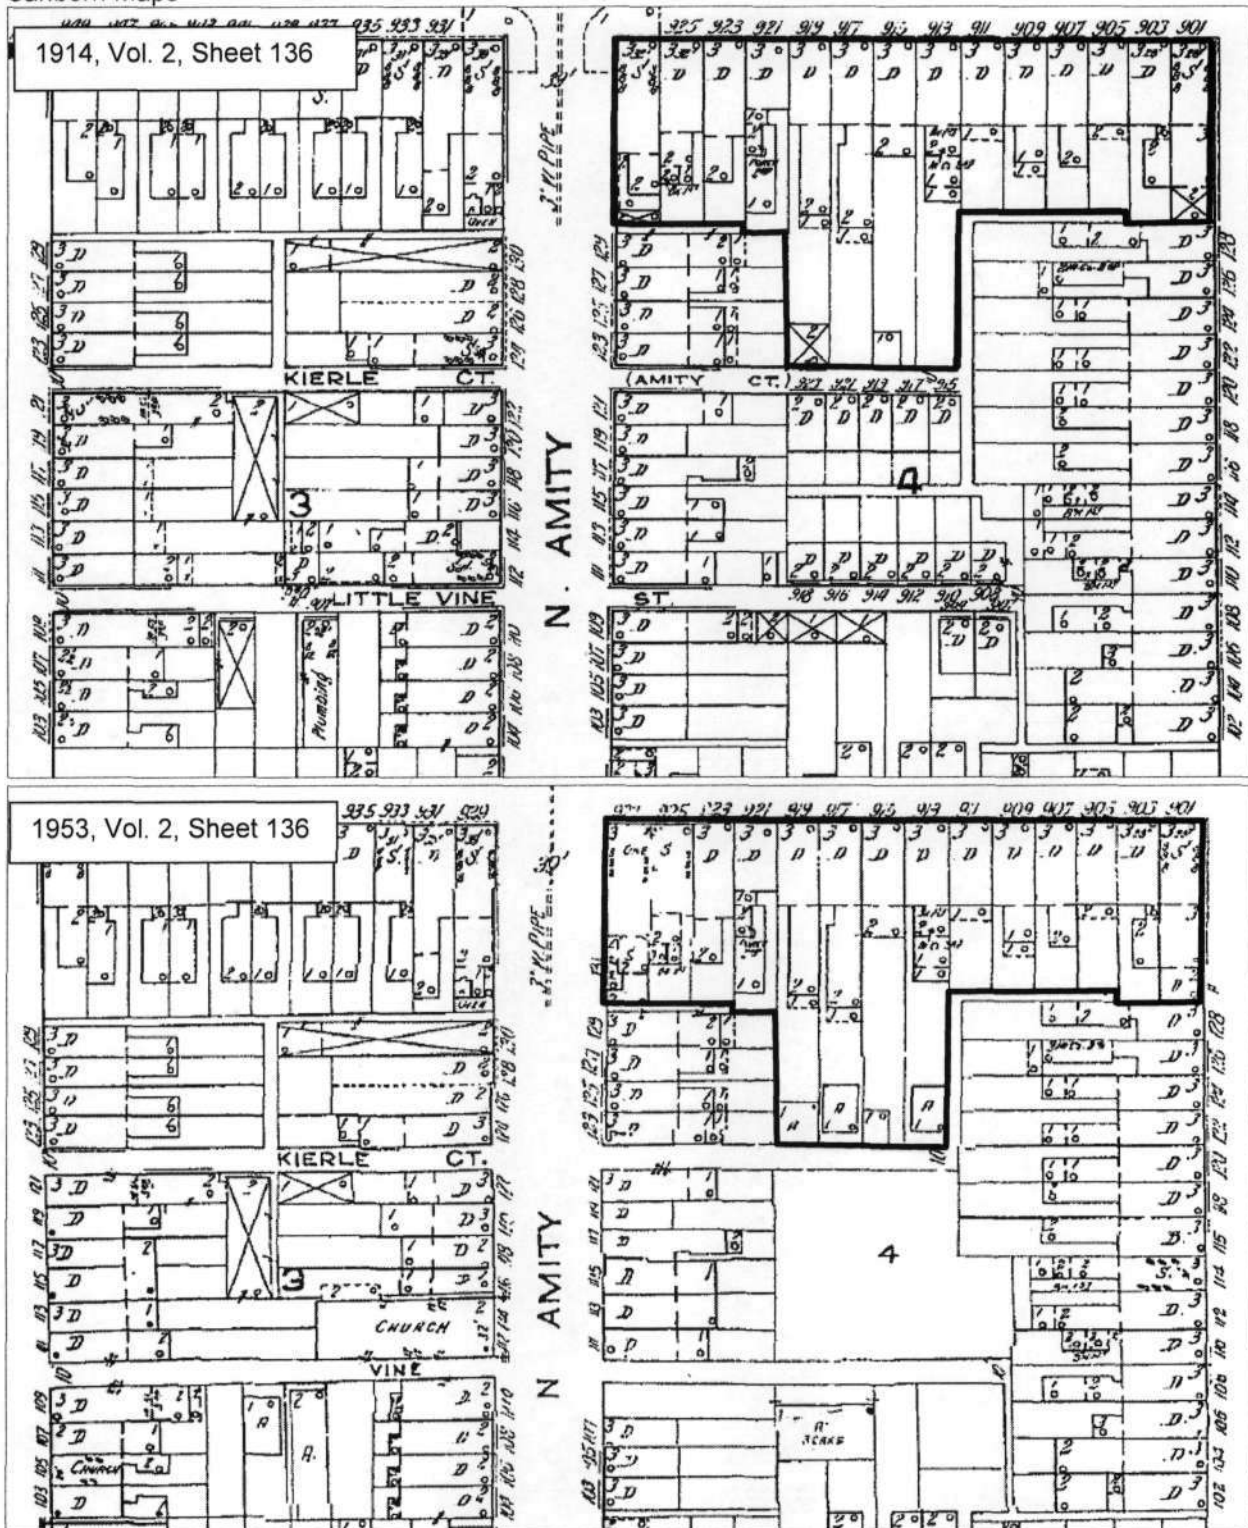

Environmental context:

Numbers 921 and 919 are vacant. Numbers 925 and 927 are used as a church and are in fair condition. The entire terrace should be rehabilitated. Number 927 is an important end-of-block house with a varied and interesting facade on Amity Street. It is a wide, busy street; no street trees; has good house-to-house scale and continuity. Poe Homes across the street.
